

Example: Linear interpolation in Matlab

Consider the data set in `sim_exp_dataset.mat`, containing a normalized concentration and time vector for an experiment and a simulation. The simulation was performed with adaptive node distance to save computation time, thus the concentration is not known at the same times. We are not able to compare yet.

